A New Department

A New Department

The Agricultural Society have made a new department this year in their Fall Fair prise list, this is the horticultural exhibit. While the list of prizes offered in this department are not large, it is a good beginning and will help to create a better interest in one of the most beautiful pastines that all can take an interest in—the growing of decorative plants and flowers.

A rapidly increasing interest is being taken in hortculture throughout the Prøvince and the exhibition in this line will no doubt not only be a surprise nut a pleasure to behold. Hortculture is one of the principal lines which is demonstrating in a greater measure each year that this is no only a great mixed farming country ut is well adapted to growing those things that help to make life worth living by beautifying our surroundings and giving the luxuries that can be obtained in much older countries.

We hope that the entries in this class will be large as it will not only create an interest in the growing of flowers and fruit but will also give encouragement to the directors to continue to growd own's along this line.

The Pre-empted Lands.

The Pre-empted Lands.

There seems to be considerable misunderstanding as to the actual principles under which the new pre-empted lands act operates. The doubt is expressed as to the limitations on the privileges of homesteaders and the relations of the general public. The act specifically gives homesteaders in good standing prior rights up to September 15th. All odd numbered sections upon which a housesteader resides are reserved for the homesteader untill the 15th.

After the 15th the priority rights.

After the 15th the priority rights case and the homesteader would have to take his chances with anyone else. It would probably prevent crushing and crowding in the Dominion lands office building at the priority of the

The question then arises, can no ne but homesteaders file claims for odd numbered sections until after the 15th inst.?

15th inst.?

The answer is, Yes. Anyone can apply, providing the old numbered section does net adjoin land new occupied by a homesteader. In other words if there is no one with priority rights to the land, then the general public ranks for application privileges under the conditions imposed by the law,

The situation is therefore not very difficult to understand, when it is real ized that homesteaders have prior rights up to the 15th for land adjoining the land upon which they are homestead-where there is no homesteader, there can be no prior rights, and the odd numbered section ranks the same as the even, for homesteading purposes.

Chapter VIII THE ATTACK.

REAT was the wonderment of the twins as to what animal would dare attack the huge marmoths, each of which was twice the size of an ordinary elephant. While the mammoths did not seem frightened, still it was evident from their careful plans for actence that they respected their adversary.

If was evalent in they respected their for defence that they respected their for defence. Again the herd trainpeted defance. Then, like a fash, an immess tiger bounded into the open space before them, Dispaying its teeth in hidrous smarl, it stepped from idle to side, seek-smarl, which is standard the same though the same though the side of the seek side is seek as the seek side of the same though to make its way back into the forest. Class Legislation

Class Legislation

There is no doubt that governments have a tendency to legislate for classes who will return them the greatest number of votes. It is the way of all governments. The British Columbia lumbermen complain that the prairie farmers have laws passed in their interest which creates unjust conditions in the manufacturers of lumber. Premier Laurier is quotted as saying that "that it would not do to put a duty on lumber coming in from Washington State." It would not do for the farmers but it seems it does not matter about the lumber manufacturers. This fact that there is no duty on lumber is a constant menace to the manufacturers, for the reason that it throws out the balance of power, and places the British Columbia mills at the mercy of the State of Washington, At the present time logs are being sold in Washington State at $5 and $5 ac a.

At the present time logs are being sold in Washington. State at $4 and $4.50 a thousand, and in B. C. at $7. In the States labor is cheaper and all ma-States labor is cheaper and all ma-chinary tempt-five per cent cheaper. Lumlier is selling at 56 and $6.50 over there, and at $9 in Vancouver base price, and at those figures the lumber-men claim it is below cost. Free lumber places the B. C. mills in this position: if they do not sell low enough, although for them that price may be below cost, the buyer will bring in the free lumber from Washington.—Com-mercial.

Three years ago, when Clarence Beanett first produced his great and successful play, "The Holy City", minuters were inclined to doubt the propiety or mosility of a libile play on so sacred a subject, some going so far as to brand it, unhead, as a sacrifige, but, upon the author's invitation to them to visit it, their demoncial tions were turned to pursist.
